

THE RESONANCE OF TRUTH & THE DISSONANCE OF A LIE

If and/or when we are born again by the Holy Spirit, we acquire within us an element or portion that is totally perfect. Being perfect, the Spirit within us cannot be deceived, tricked, nor have any other condition of mind that is common to fallen Man.

Intrinsically, our spirit, a true replica and essence of the Spirit of God Himself, should become the standard and medium by whom we mature into the fullness of Christ. One primary function of the Holy Spirit is to guide us into all truth. 'guide' means to show the way, lead, illuminate. 'Truth' here means what is true in any matter, reality, a fact, certain. The Word says, means and establishes the immutable fact He is in us to guide us into all truth. A Guide not only shows you the right way, he also warns you of the wrong ways, exposing and revealing danger.

"Truth" is comprised of a series of words, which are audible expressions of thoughts by the one transferring any 'truth'.

A thought has a certain sound, originating from a frequency, in radio lingo. When a thought is strengthened, e.g. several of interconnected thoughts begin firing at the same time, they gain composite strength and emit detectable energy. That energy is not only detectable by sensitive instruments, it is also detectable by the most sensitive 'instrument' of all, the Spirit within us

Now; that energy originates as a series of thoughts, and is transferred into audible sounds, known as words. As audible words, which have their own frequencies, also contain within them the frequencies of the thoughts behind them. Both of these frequencies are detected by the Spirit that dwells within us. Remember, He will "guide you into all truth."

Thus any given combination of words formed into a sentence, thence into a paragraph, comprises a series of thoughts, which we said all have a detectable level of energy emanating from them. If all the integral parts of any sentence are true, then the conjugate frequencies will resonate with the hearer. Conversely, if any portion of that sentence or series of sentences is not true, there will be a dissonance in the hearer, to a point.

Thus we are told we will know whether or not what is said comes from God.

Say what you will, inundate me with all your arguments, try to overcome me with your sophistry, force me into your gulags; you will never change what I sense and perceive by the Spirit, as long as I listen to Him.

So when I hear someone write or say thus and so, the Spirit within me resonates if it is true, and is dissonant if it is a lie. It is well known¹ that the ear can detect a level of a sound as small as a feather alighting

Remember a word-sound has a frequency; that extremely small differential in frequency is what we detect. If there be the slightest hint, in the form of a frequency change of a lie, something in me tells me it is wrong, untrue, evil.

A recent case in point; when I saw what UV radiation had done to a man of medicine, something in me clashed, all resonance fled, there was zero peace of thought. I may not be smart enough to know what is wrong, but I know in my “knower” something is wrong. The expressions of my suspicions may fly in the face of conventional knowledge, and cause experts and educated men in that field to roll their eyes. Nonetheless, something is wrong with using UV radiation to ‘kill’ cancer cells. UV is a frequency, no less than a light bulb..

Why? Well, if UV kills all cells, including good ones, then the frequency is such to do so. If there is a frequency to kill all cells, then there is a frequency to kill either of the two. Cancer cells do not have the same resonance frequency as do epithelial cells.

So why don't we do that?

A person can be speaking to you (or writing) and there will be a “tone” with a given frequency that is “right”; conversely, he can say precisely the same words in an ever so slightly different “tone” which clashes with your spirit within you; that tells you something is wrong, to a point.

This Divine attribute can be overridden and cauterized by repetition of lies that are not countered, no different than one can prick his skin repeatedly and the sensation of pain will leave. Equally, not everyone bats 1000, for a multitude of reasons. That is why we need each other to watch our backsides. On a good day I can only see 90 degrees to the front. That leaves 270 degrees to which I am blind.

We have forgotten, through lack of use, over-emphasizing, or just plain ignorance, what the best warning system we have at our disposal. In fact, much of the time we prefer a lie, especially if it absolves us of responsibility.

Maybe that's why people wind up in gulags...
